COULD NOT PLAY FOR PEACE BLOCKED

Tokio Insists Marshal Chang and Army Retire South of Great Wall

Paris, Dec. 2 (AP)—News that the Japanese government, insisting Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang's troops, as well as his government, be withdrawn from Chinchow behind the Great Wall threw new alarm into League headquarters this afternoon.

It was recorded as a threat to the hopes for an early settlement of the League Council's resolution on plans for a specific settlement of the Sino-Japanese conflict in Manchuria.

A Japanese spokesman told the Associated Press "the Council is not taking seriously our demand about the Chinese withdrawing from Chinchow, but we mean business."

The Japanese delegation to the league up to the present had said nothing about the necessity of the Chinese civil government evacuating Chinchow.

The announcement came in a press report from Tokyo and caused sharp surprise.

The Japanese proposal was described by the Chinese representatives as another step Japan to establish a puppet government which would be subject to Tokyo.

A evacuation of Chinchow to not embodied in the Council's resolution, but the Japanese declaration in connection with the provision for a truce in hostilities. A peaceful regime cannot be sustained if they contend, unless Chinese military forces clear out of Manchuria. They press the same demand in connection with organizing a neutral zone.

China Massing Troops for Battles on Two Fronts

Mukden, Dec. 2 (INS)—Sino-Japanese hostilities may be renewed within a week in both the Sino-Japanese and Chinchow areas, according to indications here today.

Foreign observers expressed the belief that new clashes were imminent in view of reported Chinese troop concentrations in both North and South Manchuria.

Japanese military headquarters were said to be massing troops and irregulars east of Tientsin numbered 20,000 and that reinforcements were being sent to the front.

Japanese airplanes pilot reported along the Peking-Mukden Railway there were large Chinese forces, consisting of two divisions, a cavalry brigade, an artillery battery and a machine gun unit, while anti-aircraft positions were being constructed south of Mukden.

The Japanese also reported that the Chinese troops were massed in 21 train cars on the railroad tracks between Kowang and Tachien.

MOONEY'S FATE UP TO ROLPH

San Francisco, Dec. 2 (U.S.)—Mayor James J. Walker of New York city, pleading eloquently for a pardon for Tom Mooney, convicted labor leader, was the central figure in a legal drama here that was without precedent in American jurisprudence.

It will be weeks or months before Mooney's case is decided by the Governor.

Rolph, however, will advise the State building yesterday as the mayor was making his plea before Governor James Rolph, Jr., and a board of advisers. Twenty-five alleged Communists, including four women, were arrested. The prison used these little friends and moaned officers rode into the morning through.

Rolph said the national attorney general and his two legal associates, Frank P. Walsh, senior counsel for Mooney, and Aaron Sapiro, made impassioned pleas to the governor in pardon Mooney.

Governor Rolph, upon completion of the hearing, announced that he would give his decision on Mooney's application for a pardon just as soon as possible.

CONNER SOUGHT FOR THEFT IN BARNSTABLE

New Charge Reveals Another Chapter in Love Life of the 52-Year-Old "Don Juan"

A Massachusetts jail yawned today for Ernest W. A. Conner, Malden's "great lover."

The 52-year-old "Don Juan," who so ruled the affections of his middle-aged wife, Inez, and Canada's "ski girl," May Gledhill, mother of his child, that they lived together in perfect unity, has been indicted by the Barnstable County grand jury.

He is charged with larceny of $27.50 by means of a worthless check, a charge similar to that which resulted in his arrest and the disruption of the strange domestic triangle last September.

Deputy Sheriff E. C. Hall, of Harwichport, today forwarded a copy of the indictment warrant to the warden of Vermont state prison in Windsor where Conner has served two months of a 30-month sentence.

Behind the action, it was revealed, is another chapter in the bizarre love tangle of the Malden construction engineer and the two women who submitted, together, to his every whim.

CAROL TO EXILE 'FOOL PRINCE'

Budapest, Dec. 2 (AP)—Prince Nicholas of Romania has one more day, reports from Bucharest said today, to renounce his marriage to Miss (Dietel), a commoner, or be exiled from the royal family under a statute which was originally adopted to curb Carol himself.

The King, who spent several years in exile because of an affair with Miss Magda Lupescu, recently was prevailed on by his cabinet members, in the interest of his favor with the people, to curb his wrath against his younger brother, and he gave Nicholas two months to "think things over."

The Prince wrote Carol defiant letters, however, the reports said, and now Carol has decided to back him tomorrow unless he repents. The King is reported as declaring that no prince should be allowed to "make a fool of himself."

Rumanian politicians are interceding in Nicholas' behalf in order to maintain the King's popularity.

WOMEN TAKING CASH, TOO

Chicago, Dec. 2 (AP)—The women appear to be getting the money. In fact, said Miss Lena Madson, Phillips, a New York leader in radio address, they control about 41 per cent of the individual wealth of the United States.

"Forty-four women and 42 men paid taxes on net income of more than $1,000,000 in 1928," she said. "Eleven million middle-class women of our country held more than $2,000,000,000, and in range of individual income of more than $100,000, individual women received more than that reported by men."

ALFONSO'S BOY TRIES TO ELOPE

Palo Alto, Dec. 2 (AP)—The plans of Don Jaime de Bourbon, second son of former King Alfonso, to elope and marry an unidentified Spanish girl have been thwarted by his parents. It was authoritatively learned today.

Persons close to the royal family said Don Jaime told his father, who was in the United States, that he was going to elope with a "little automobile" from the house at Fontainebleau a few days on a "little automobile trip" where he intended to be married secretly at Bayonne early this week.

Learning that complete papers had been prepared for the wedding, friends of the family notified him and he in turn appealed to Alfonso.

He insisted that Don Jaime write the girl a letter of renunciation.

NEGRO 'SLAVE' CHARGE BARED

Washington, Dec. 2 (AP)—A thorough airing appeared likely today for charges of slave labor in the levee construction camps along the lower Mississippi.

News that a Federation of Labor investigation was going to report conditions of degrading brutality, use of lash and pistol beat on negro laborers held in virtual bondage by contractors on the big government flood control job, set in motion a War Department inquiry.

If its findings are not satisfactory, there is even possibility that Congress may look into the situation. However, the chief of army engineers, Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, is on the spot, and the regional supervising engineer of the army has been instructed to report fully on conditions.

Bayles, Springfield, Mass., aviator, plans to make a fourth attempt and hopes to reach 300 miles an hour.

Official timers who credited Bayles an hour after his flight yesterday, corrected the figures today and disclosed the actual average was 281.5 miles an hour. To claim a new record Bayles had to better by 457 miles an hour the old record of 234 made in 1925 by Warrent Officer Bonnet, of France.

Mrs. Karlson was the mother of eight children, and police claim that Myatt was the father of Eleanor, who died two months ago, and whose body was found in a room in the cellar of Mrs. Karlson's home, a three-year-old girl.

LITTLE VICTIM MAY LOSE USE OF BOTH EYES

State Moves to Take Seven Children of Woman Held With "Husband"

Worcester, Dec. 2—With one little girl in a serious condition in City Hospital from neglect, Ernest D. Gladstone, Worcester agent of the M. S. P. C. C., entered a petition in district court today to be appointed guardian of the seven children of Mrs. Eva Karlson, 38, of Cambridge St.

It was in this house that discovery of the body of an eight child, an infant, found in the cellar, led to finding of 22-month-old Helen, blind in one eye, and suffering from malnutrition, anemia and other ailments.

STATE SEEKS CARE

Gladstone's petition today was preliminary to a move to have the children taken from the mother and placed in care of the State, on the charge that they are neglected children.

Meanwhile, at City Hospital it was said that little Helen, now only 14 pounds and six ounces, may be confined in the hospital for a month and may be handicapped for life.

It is feared that the girl, who is unable to walk or talk and who is subnormal, may lose the sight of the other eye through long neglect.

ON SPECIAL DIET

The child was found at 471 Southbridge st., where, it is alleged, she had been concealed for six weeks from welfare visitors.

Little Helen's condition was attributed to lack of proper food and sunlight. Physicians have prescribed for her a special diet of cod liver oil, spinach, and prune juice.

Alphonse Myatt, 51, occupant of the home in which the girl was found, appeared in court yesterday with Mrs. Karlson. They are said to be the parents of Helen and another child whose body was found buried in the cellar of Mrs. Karlson's home. They were charged with living together unlawfully and failing to report a birth.

Both pleaded not guilty. Mrs. Karlson was released on bail but Myatt was held because of his failure to raise bonds.

Mrs. Karlson's husband, Frank Karlson, is now serving a term of from 10 to 20 years at state prison for burglary.

The students and residents of Dudley saved the school records and some furniture on the first floor.

RAIL WORKERS MAY FIGHT CUT

Montreal, Dec. 2 (AP)—Intimation that railway workers might not accept the findings of the commission board for a 10 per cent reduction in wages was given today by James Murdoch, vice president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen.

"I cannot say definitely," Murdoch stated, "but anyone who has followed the course of the particular commission investigation of this strike will see where the standers. The instructions of the men were to accept no reduction."

"It is now up to the 20,000 men affected. Whether there will be a vote among the men has not been decided, but I do not think it will be necessary."

PROBE FOR TIRE PRICE SLASH

Akron, O., Dec. 2 (AP)—The Akron Beacon Journal said today a proposal to ask for a federal trade commission investigation of this week's tire price slash is being considered by several rubber company executives. The story, which did not reveal its source, said no decision had been reached.

The newspaper said if the proposal was filed it would be based on claims the price slash was made for the purpose of squeezing the smaller companies and thus constituting restraint of trade.

BEACON HILL

THE EARLY WINTER SEASON HAS SEEN MANY NEW and old faces back in town, buying clothes, seeing plays, attending charity affairs, taking the new turtle gland treatments and generally lolling up for the busy season to come.

Country life is holding its own with hunting parties to keep it alive, and it is so easy to motor over good roads to keep a late dance engagement or meet at some restaurant rendezvous and still be in the silk before morning.

We hear that the Herbert Gades have been in town for about two weeks and many dinner parties have been given in their honor. You know they are the charming people who have a castle in Christiana, adjoining the royal estates, a villa in Italy and a lovely place in New York, where Mr. Gade is a prominent architect. Horace Gade, a brother, resides in Boston.

MABEL RITCHIE The Gades are a fascinating family and much sought after socially. Among the many friends who entertained for them recently was Mrs. James Parker of Mt. Vernon st., who has since gone to Washington for a brief visit.

Freeman Hinckleys Entertain MR. AND MRS. FREEMAN HINCKLEY ALSO GAVE A dinner party for them, Mrs. Hinckley being in Boston for the holiday season. We hear she is planning to spend part of her time in Chicago, where her children are at school.

AN AMBULOUS RANDOMIZER of the times is a remark we heard the other day when a witty matron called up a friend to inquire as to the date of her next visit. Upon the friend's regret that she would be unable to accept the dinner invitation the young matron pleaded: "But you simply MUST. My husband and I are going to be ALONE if you don't. Shades of Mr. Macbeth, nothing terrible would surely happen today if husbands and wives were left alone for an evening."

ANOTHER NEWCOMER to town for a while is a tall and beautiful blonde, Miss Dorothy Lawrence (not the Milton Dorell), but the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Effingham Lawrence of Long Island. Mr. Lawrence was formerly Miss Dorothy Gookin of Boston and a great belle in the natural circles. A sister, Miss Marian Gookin, still resides in Boston in one of the best addresses of the historic old town. The Lawrences have the winter home in New York for years but Miss Dorothy is spending at the time and we hear that she is planning to open a travel bureau or some such venture in connection with a popular women's magazine. Not that she needs the money—the Effingham Lawrences have always been reputed to be very rich—but it is evidently just another ambitious little rich girl.

IT IS NICE THAT MRS. ANDREW EDIOT RITCHIE has returned to town to entertain for her two daughters who came out last year, but whose season was cut short because of the flu. Mrs. Ritchie gave a dinner for the young girls before the last Boston Hall dinner and is giving a tea at the Longwood Club on Dec. 15. They are the Misses Mary

JANE BANCROFT MAKES DEBUT AT BALL

MISS JANE BANCROFT

Hundreds Invited to Brilliant Event at Hotel Somerset

Miss Jane Bancroft is to be formally presented at one of the largest and most beautiful balls of the season, when her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Bancroft, entertain in her honor at the Hotel Somerset this evening. A tea, given early in September at Deer Hill, the Bancrofts' summer place in Cohasset, marked this debutante's move or less informal entrance into society's masquerade, but the ball tonight will transcend that and many of the other debuts made so far.

The usher's dinner, where 50 odd of those hard working men from Cambridge will sit down with as many of the winter's buds, will take place at the Somerset, and at 10 o'clock, or thereabouts, the other guests will begin to arrive. The impressive list of heads in, of course, Hugh Bancroft, Jr., brother of the honored deb, and their cousin, Malcolm Bancroft. Under their able direction will be William C. Cox, Miss Jane's uncle-in-law, whose charming wife, the former Jean Bancroft, will not move into their new home at 21 Chestnut st. until the 15th.

The daughter of the high-society, the former Jean Bancroft, will be present, due to an illness which kept her at the Phillips House, Zabid Baylston, Jr., whose name has graced the majority of such lists this season. L. Nickerson, Jr., Charles L.

Interpreted among the "hazy of beautiful buds" attending the dinner will be a few post debts, namely Miss Elizabeth Stone, Miss Evelyn Ruyter, Miss Edith Wootton, Miss Eleanor Gibson, Miss Ruth Gibson, Miss Nancy Morton, Miss Elizabeth Morison, all of whom are of several seasons ago, and Miss Virginia Badger, one of more recent years, whose engagement to Frank M. Bremer was announced two or three weeks ago.

Others to attend include the Misses Katherine Hatch, Barbara Baker, Alma Bird, Catherine Little, Leslie Baker, Peggy Bradley, Linda Collins, Betty Cram, Dorcas Dean, Arlene De Rossett, Sally Drew, Alice Ellsworth, Elizabeth Evans, Jean Hall, Edmund Hall, Helen Homans, Katherine Johnson, Elvira Jones, Emily Lincoln, Jane Locke, Julia Mason, R. New York's '4 Horsemen' Win Auction Bridge Title

Philadelphia, Dec. 2 (AP)—East-erners broke a Middle Western monopoly on four auction bridge championships today and strove to retain their dominance of the contract titles as play started in that direction.

A team of four representing the Knickerbocker Whist Club of New York captured the national team championship at the fifth annual American Bridge League tournament.

Two members of the team, Baron Waldemar von Zedwitz and P. H. H. Sims, won the national pair title and the other two members, Oswald Jacoby and David Burnison, were runners-up.

CLEVELAND WOMEN WIN Two Philadelphia women, Mrs. J. B. Jones and Mrs. H. L. Peterson, snatched the trophy in their division, although the team of four in which they played finished third.

The only victory of the Mid-Westerns was that of four Cleveland women playing as a team, but representing no club. They are Mrs. H. J. White, Mrs. A. C. Hoffmeister, Mrs. Anna Rosenfeld and Mrs. C. T. Robertson.

Mrs. Rosenfeld and Mrs. Robertson were runners-up in the pair competition, to which they held the title last year. The men's pair championship previously was held by R. L. Richards and P. S. Entola of Detroit. The men's team crown by C. T. Robertson, John H. Law, Maurice Macchke and V. F. Boland of Cleveland, and the women's team by Mrs. E. P. Sawhill, Mrs. A. W. Nolan, Mrs. Robertson and

THE J. FRANKLIN McELWAIN has not moved into their new house at 21 Chestnut st. until the 15th.

MISS DOROTHY PRESTON is off for winter abroad, her mother, Mrs. Howard G. Cutler of Beacon st., having accompanied her as far as New York to see her off. While there they stopped at the Ritz-Carlton.

GLORIA DEFIES LAW TO WED NO. 4

Faced Charge of Bigamy, But She Beat Marquis

HERE is the concluding chapter in Louella O. Parsons' fascinating story of the life and love of Gloria Swanson, "The star who is in love with love." Previous chapters have told of Miss Swanson's story in life, at her first marriage, her divorce, her second marriage, and now her love affairs and her first three marriages. Yesterday you were told Gloria had asked, "Who is Gloria Swanson?" Today's installment deals with her late secret wedding to Farmer.

by LOUELLA O. PARSONS Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service, Inc. Hollywood, Dec. 2.—All Virginia Bowler managed to do to interest Gloria Swanson was to repeat what Michael Farmer had said, Gloria was intrigued. Other young men fell over themselves in their eagerness to meet her. Here was one who left the impression he had never even heard of her.

An introduction was arranged. Mr. Farmer invited Miss Swanson to dinner. According to the story told by Miss Bowler to friends, Gloria bought a Chanel model and looked so beautiful, almost as if youth would have fallen at her feet. Mr. Farmer arrived for the dinner engagement in street clothes. "We are not dressing," he told her. Gloria, a little amused but still fascinated, changed to her street clothes. A romance was born. Gloria was in love again. Glowing letters reached her from Michael Farmer, who was now in New York, Virginia, who has been like a sister to the movie star, called for home with little Gloria. When Gloria reached New York on the Aquitania, August 14, 1928, she was accompanied by Michael himself. She was interviewed when she and Michael Farmer got off the train at Pasadena. When asked when she was to marry the attentive Michael, Miss Swanson indignantly answered there would be a marriage. To reporters she said: "Every time I smile at a man, I am reported engaged."

At that time, remember, Gloria was his bride. There have been many reasons advanced for that hurried marriage on the morning of August 16, many suitors offered to do as proxy for a girl as Gloria Swanson should not be asked to be married on the ignominious charge of bigamy. Only Gloria and her bridegroom know why they chose that summer day to be married.

The day that her divorce became final Gloria and Michael Farmer had a second ceremony performed at Yuma. Newspapers told her that this second ceremony would make the first ceremony null and void. Everyone breathed a sigh of relief when the marriage was annulled. Gloria had been married a second time and that there was to be no scandal.

Will this marriage be her last or will she after a time, become tired of the young tribulation? People who are fond of Gloria hope for her sake that number nine finally be her last. Gloria had ventured and that she will find real happiness, if it is possible for a girl who changes her mind as often as Gloria to be really happy.

A few of her Hollywood goings-on intimate that Gloria married Farmer so that her marriage ceremony would be performed before that of her former husband, the Marquis De La Fayette, and Constance Bennett. I think this is a decidedly unkind point of view for Gloria is in love and no one in the world finds love more necessary in her life than this intrepid, colorful motion picture actress.

NOBLE'S SECRET SANITY TESTS TO BE BARED

A request to see the report of the two State alienists who examined Russell B. Noble after his admission to the hospital, Mrs. Clara E. C. Mills to death will be made today by the judge's new counsel, Attorney George A. Douglas.

Douglas, based on five visits of the alienist to Noble while he was in jail at Lawrence and later secretly filed with the court, was finally impounded. Because of this reason, Attorney Douglas will conduct an exhaustive investigation.

Douglas will further demand permission to examine the report of Medical Examiner George H. Magrath, who, in his autopsy, found multiple bruises on the body of the wealthy Hayhill resident.

The series of examinations into the sanity of young Noble were made by Dr. Clarence A. Bonney, superintendent of the Devereux State Hospital, and Dr. L. Vernon Briggs, noted Boston alienist.

Their examinations were made under the greatest secrecy, as was the filing of their report. Contents of the reports were never made public.

FACTS HIDDEN, HE SAYS

Having stretched out into many phases of the unusual slaying of Mrs. Mills, Attorney Douglas expects to lay the foundation for the plea that he plans to place before the Gov. Ely for consideration.

"There are many facts in this case which never reached proper authorities," Attorney Douglas said today. "After my investigation is complete, I hope to piece together the elements of the case before those who should be interested."

Douglas also admitted that secret operations who have been quiet working in the Hayhill case, unearthed considerable information for him. With them, he has uncovered all new evidence that they bring to light. This report will bring today to his client at state prison and together they will reconstruct the crime.

BOY ANXIOUS TO TELL

Young Noble is co-operating with him, Douglas said. In every way, life is anxious to tell what actually happened in that room the night Mrs. Mills was killed.

Douglas said, "After my investigation is complete, I hope to piece together the elements of the case before those who should be interested."

"In the interests of justice the whole story should be told."

Washington, Dec. 2 (INS)—Up-Down Sam finished the first month of the 1932 fiscal year with a deficit of $858,743,000 against $304,300,000 Nov. 30, 1930, the Treasury announced today.

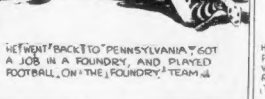

For the July 1-Nov. 30 period, total receipts were $801,788,000, a reduction of $70,000,000 from the same period last year, and expenditures were $1,656,531,000, an increase of $58,000,000.

TOM MIX

Went Off to War at 19—by DOROTHY ROE

COL. THEODORE ROOSEVELT

The Mix family moved to Pennsylvania for a short time during Tom's boyhood, but the West was in the blood of young Tom Mix, and at 15 he was back in the Lone Star State, working as a regular cowboy. He has described those months as the happiest of his life, when he had the whole Texas range for a riding track, with plenty of free horses on responsibility, and all the glamor of the West. A cowboy was a romantic figure even then. A gun and a lariat were as important to young Tom as his shirt. He was the youngest cowboy the Texas range, slept in his blankets at night, rode miles every day, measured himself man to man against his fellows.

Then he went back in Pennsylvania, got a job in a foundry, and played football on the foundry team. But soon he was to go back to shooting and riding, the things he loved best, for the Spanish-American War broke out and more adventures were in store for Tom Mix. Tom Mix, the disarming cowboy, fought in Cuba, was shot up in China and captured in Africa before he struck his stride as the bronchobusting hero of the movies. He saw his baptism of fire at 19, when he volunteered for service in the Spanish-American War. Mix wanted war. He craved for action in war, on horseback or on ship. Strangely he preferred a ship.

He was working as a humberjack in the Pennsylvania forests, swinging his axe and wondering where to go next in his search for adventure when somebody yelled: "Hi, Tom, American! declared war on Spain! Tom tried to join the navy, thinking he'd see more excitement there. He even stowed away on a warship and found himself fighting it out with half a dozen officers all grinning with gold braids before he finally was convinced that no more men were needed in the navy. Fate, or was it braided officers of the navy, that found Mix back on his horse again. There seemed to be no ship job. Read on.

But Tom Mix had decided that if a fight were going on he was going to be in it. So he journeyed to Washington to see the adjutant-general and pleaded his cause as well that he was accepted as a full-fledged member of Capt. Grimes' artillery battery. He saw some hot fighting with the Rough Riders at Cristobal Hill and then was made a scout and courier to Gen. Clinch, who had known his father in the old days. And it was at Cristobal Hill that he fought under the man who became at once his idol and hero—Col. Theodore Roosevelt.

The fourth installment of the life of Tom Mix will appear tomorrow.

GAIN IS SHOWN IN BUSINESS

Washington, Dec. 2 (INS)—Additional indicators of improved business, including an increase in production of steel, larger employment, particularly through public works and favorable results of community chest drives came to the Commerce department today from many sections of the country.

Eighteen out of twenty-seven reporting cities found conditions better, showing promise of improvement or an increasing sentiment of optimism among business men and officials. There were many instances where exhibitions for charity revealed unemployment funds and from most reporting cities came the indication that suffering during winter would be kept at minimum.

Cities where the situation was more favorable were Buffalo, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Wilmington, Del., Danville, Va., Charlotte, N. C., Atlanta, Birmingham, Mobile, Houston, Dallas, Chicago, Detroit, St. Louis, Minneapolis, Salt Lake City, Portland and San Francisco.

Huge Cost Cited for St. Lawrence Canal

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 2 (AP)—Peter G. Ten Eyck, president of the New York State Highway Association, has figured to show the St. Lawrence ship canal and power project would cost the United States and Canada $182,000 a day for the next 10 years, exclusive of maintenance, operation and repair costs, he told a radio audience last night.

Ten Eyck opposes federalization of the New York state large canal and the St. Lawrence shipway. The latter, he said, would be damaging to the state.

REAL BRAINS IN DEMAND, NOW

New York, Dec. 2 (AP)—Industry is calling more men of exceptional ability and fewer of the conventional types to its rebuilding the American Society of Mechanical Engineers said in a "progress report" today.

"Leadership of a radically newer and more powerful order," the report stated, "is making its appearance through broader appreciation of the human element and its influence upon progress and economic stability."

"The field of marketing," it added, "is now in the need of sound common sense and engineering skill."

The group opposed the view of "a shadowy, economic, leading man of our bankers," that "wages should be reduced in proportion to reduction in commodity prices."

Teachers Forced to Leave Prison

Mexico City, Dec. 2 (AP)—A dozen school teachers who had been held in the penitentiary at San Luis Potosi were forcibly ejected from the prison after they had refused to leave under court injunctions granted them.

Some of them were on a hunger strike and all refused to quit the prison until other teachers, arrested ten days ago, were accounted for.

SHOE TARIFF IS SENT HIGHER

Washington, Dec. 2 (AP)—President Hoover today approved tariff increases on two commodities and decreases on five others.

The increases, recommended by the tariff commission and effective Jan. 1, 1932, were on Mackay sewed shoes and on fresh green peas.

The duty on shoes was increased from 20 per cent ad valorem to 30 per cent ad valorem.

The peas levy was raised from 3 to 2.5 cents per pound.

Canada, the United Kingdom, Belgium, Czechoslovakia, Switzerland, Mexico and Cuba are the chief foreign countries concerned in imports.

Home Conference Opens in Capital

Washington, Dec. 2 (AP)—A conference called by President Hoover to tap toward reality the ideal of private homes for all the people convened today in Washington.

Representatives of the country men and women—6000 were invited and 2000 accepted—came to outline how better American homes may be built and owned.

Clark Gable in Davies Film

By LOUELLA O. FARNSON
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor

(Copyright, 1931, Universal Service, Inc.)
Los Angeles, Dec. 2.—What a lot of girls are going to be envious of Marion Davies these next few weeks. Clark Gable, at this moment, is almost as popular as Rudolph Valentino was in his hey-day, while play the made lead opposite Marion in "Polly of the Circus."

Clark was away on a motor trip with his wife when tests were being made for the role of the minister.

None of these tests were entirely satisfactory. Then Clark returned to Hollywood and made a test. In spite of the fact that there were over a dozen other girls who thought he might not be as successful in a ministerial part as he is as a dashing young man.

Seen and Heard
At the Irving Thalberg's ton on Sunday, Louis Veltz discovered that Clark Gable and Raymond Hatton are also signed for important roles opposite Miss Davies. Production starts immediately, with Al Benoit playing the part of Clark Gable's play brought up-to-date, has been made into an actual vehicle for Marion.

Another ministerial rumor has been absolutely killed by Marion Davies. Any report that she and Clark Gable are engaged is absolutely untrue.

Marion Davies, the actress who has been the subject of so much gossip, is now in Paris with her mother, who hasn't been well, and dozens of cabarets have been exchanged, to say nothing of letters. We are very glad to be able to make this announcement. Silence, perhaps, in this case, wasn't golden, for if Mr. Chevalier had only spoken in the beginning these rumors might have died then and there.

Looks as if the movies have permanently adopted Melvyn Douglas. Melvyn made his screen debut in "Tonight or Never" opposite Gloria Swanson, playing the role he created on the stage. Then he was chosen to play opposite Ann Harding in "Prestige," and now he has been summoned to support beautiful Claudette Colbert in "His Confession."

Lila Lee hadn't been back in town two days before she put her signature on a contract with Harry Condon. She has done other work for him and when he found he needed a leading lady for "Zola Marx," Charles G. Morris' story, he signed Lila. She is a real find, too, not as plump as when she left the sanitarium but the same fascinating Lila. Lila, with a voice perfect for talkies. She began work at once and work you will agree is a panacea for all ills.

What with Edmund Goulding's wedding on Saturday afternoon, the Embassy opening that night, the Thalberg-Gibson tree on Sunday, we seemed to meet everybody in filmland. The Embassy, the motion picture club of Hollywood, was a miniature Mayfair with dozens and dozens of well known film people present. Eddie Rymaszewski entertained in honor of the Morton Downeys. At his table were not only the Benetts, Joan and Barbara, but the Gene Markey, Little Mrs. Reginald Deney and Peggy Blumstein in pale blue satin and many, many diamonds. A. C. Blumenthal just arrived in town last day. He had been in San Francisco with Mayor Walker. Mary Pickford in scarlet velvet trimmed with champagne, looked unusually smart. In the same party with her was Marion Davies in a white chiffon frock with brilliantia. Florence Eldridge in pale yellow came from the theater to join her husband, Frederic March. Evelyn Brent was a guest of the Frank J. Hayes and at a nearby table at Key Francis.

CARMEN PANTAGES with a scarlet waist and a small black hat, looking very smart, arriving at the tea.

with the ever devoted JOHN CONSIDINE. LILY DAMITA with bangs and receiving much attention at the GOULDING wedding reception. Fully 300 people were there. BILL DOVE, RUTH CHATTERTON, RALPH FORBES and scores of others called to meet the new MISS GOULDING. EDMUND D. COLENTY, one of the important HEART editors, stopping in Los Angeles en route to his former home town, San Francisco. HOMER QUICK, publisher of the Chicago Herald-Examiner, also in town for a few days.

Added Attraction at Fine Arts Tonight
The Fine Arts, tonight, in addition to the unusual film, "Mystery of Life," with Clarence Darrow explaining it, will have an additional treat for the 9 o'clock show, presenting Miss Anita Plamondon. Miss Plamondon will appear in a group of character portrayals. Miss Plamondon has been called "Boston's Own Ruth Drapher."

Tibbett Film, Laurel & Hardy at State Friday
Loew's State on Friday will offer an unusual two-feature love and laugh bill comprising Lawrence Tibbett's latest Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer starring picture, "The Cuban Love Song," and Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy in their second long comedy, "Beau Hunk."

Joan Crawford Comes to Orpheum on Friday
Joan Crawford comes to the screen at Loew's Orpheum Friday with Clark Gable in "Possessed," her latest success. The breezy Western boy, Oklahoma Bob Albright, assisted by Beverly Sikes and Deason Hoffman, will headline the new vaudeville bill in a singing and dancing comedy melange called "Ex-ponents of Good Cheer." Barry Boyce and Billie May in a dance turn are another important highlight.

Just compare the Freshness!

CAMELS are never parched or toasted

THERE is one infallible way to test the benefits of true freshness in a cigarette: smoke a Camel.

See how light and fragrant it is, how delicately mild, how smooth and friendly to the throat.

See how ripe and mellow are its flavors, how distinctive its bouquet, how suave and cool is its slow-burning solace.

That's what true freshness means in the goodness of really fine tobaccos—choice, mild, sun-ripened tobaccos—the only kind that find their way into Camels.

The fine tobaccos in Camels are never parched or toasted—the Reynolds method of scientifically applying heat guarantees against that.

That's why Camels are fresh to start with, fresh with natural moisture—and why the Camel Humidor Pack can deliver them to you fresh to smoke.

"You needn't tell me
—I know Camel is the fresh cigarette!"

Don't remove the moisture-proof wrapping from your packages of Camels after you open it. The Camel Humidor Pack is protection against perfume and powder odors, dust and germs. In offices and homes, even in the dry atmosphere of artificial heat, the Camel Humidor Pack delivers fresh Camels and keeps them right until the last one has been smoked.

U. S. PAYS OUT $883,000 TO GET $488,000

In this third article on European war debts, showing what the United States is paying in comparison with the amounts paid by the various debtor nations, the post-war debt of Hungary is analyzed.

Washington, Dec. 2.—Naturally there was nothing due from Hungary on account of advances made during the war. After the war, supplies were afforded Hungary by the United States government to the amount of $1,883,000.

Notwithstanding this was a post-war debt and the small amount thereof, a settlement was made with Hungary in the identical form of that with Italy.

PAYS FOR 62 YEARS

It provides for the cancellation of the principal sum of $1,883,000 and in lieu thereof the payment of 5 per cent interest on the face of this debt for a period of 62 years after which all payments are to cease as the principal sum of the debt is cancelled.

For the period ending with this fiscal year, it will have cost the United States treasury to carry this debt $883,000, whereas the payments of Hungary for the period will total but $488,000. Therefore, the net cost of carrying this debt to the end of the present year will be some $415,000.

There is no just reason why Hungary should not have paid this debt in full with 4 1/2 per cent interest within a comparatively few years.

However, the debt commission seems to have been doing a routine job, as they applied the usual form of debt settlement, providing for cancellation, and charged it up to the ability-to-pay theory.

OUR FOOLISH POLICY

Had the debt commission insisted upon an additional annual payment by Hungary of but a quarter of a cent a year for each of Hungary's inhabitants for the 62 years Hungary's debt would have been paid in full with 4 1/2 per cent interest and to cancellation whatever.

Is it to be wondered that deficits will develop with such treatment of our governmental credits in vogue?

There is no justification for a moratorium in this case, and certainly after such generous treatment of a debtor, suggestions of a further reduction of cancellation of interest should not be entertained.

The tomorrow's article Senator Howell will discuss the Belgium war debt, showing that this debt, a comparatively small one, already has cost the American taxpayers about $110,000,000 in interest alone.

PITTSBURGH TOO TERRIBLE

A SYMBOL TO REMAIN

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

CITIES CAN be symbols. New York, for instance. Great skyscrapers with unrented minutes and unlighted windows; the "Empty State" building, some one told me, is the wisecrack now; expensive apartments with tenants drowning, lease or no lease, as they move to the cheaper side streets; the suburbs, apple sellers on the street corners; Broadway growing cheaper and cheaper to eye and ear. A city built on bluff and inflation and large salaries and plenty of vice-presidents and more overhead and watered stock values.

Or Pittsburgh. I just came from there. Close enough, because there isn't enough smoke in Pittsburgh these days to suit you up as in the good old days. Said a fine old lady to me: "That's what we are waiting for. The smoke once more. Plenty of black smoke. There's where the money is." And yet, from Boston's point of view, there's plenty of smoke in Pittsburgh enough, at least, to make the symbol plain.

See Pittsburgh, even in depression, and read John K. Winkler's new book, "Incredible Carnegie" (Vanguard Press). If you would understand of what Pittsburgh is a symbol.

Finest View in America

From Johnstown with its many-bulldozed Cambria plant of the Bethlehem Steel, you ride through Altoona and on into the coal and steel country. Mile upon mile of tracks lined with open cars carrying coal, waiting for coal; tracks running through deep cuts black with coal; the very earth, seemingly, black; little villages and hamlets dark and grimy with coal dust, where trains wait on sidings to be filled with coal.

Into the suburbs of Steelville. The beginnings of the multitudinous hills, through which the railroad runs into the valley which is Pittsburgh. The factories begin; little factories isolated, in knots, surrounded by hovels and cabins, grime and dirt, perched up and down the profiles of the endless crumpled, Meanderer everywhere the little creeks and branches of muddy water as deeply yellow as mustard pickle colored with turmeric.

Bigger hamlets, suburban towns where the railroad tracks cut across the front lawns of villas of brick and stone and stone. Expensive houses cheek by jowl with incredible shanties, all straggling up and down the hills. From top to top run bridges, viaducts, for traffic—and everywhere, giving the meaning to the scene, the factory, the mill. Some are very old, of dark brick and small, broken window lights; some are new, incredibly long all glass and steel frames. A little flag station carries the name "Beasmer," and not long after you see the enormous bulk and length of one of the plants of the Carnegie Steel Company, one of the creations of the little Scots genius who, as Mr. Winkler tells, drove his workers and superintendents to unheard of production and incredible profits.

Arnold Bennett says that could Balzac have seen it he would have shouted "Give me a pen." Theodore Dreiser, I was told, believes that "this view of the valley and the city from the hills is the finest thing in America."

A big, rich, sky-scraped, busy city that goes crazily up and down hills, as does everything in that country, but which for all that lies in a valley encircled by hills that smoke. On every side the great plants, the chimneys of the blast furnaces glow heliostatically night and smoke furiously by day. As far as one can see on every side, plants, chimneys, smoke and blackened hills. And fed by railroad lines that pour coal and still more coal into the maw of the steel business.

Behind it all the industrial fury, the sweat of production and still more production, the ceaseless, ceaseless, ceaseless count of day or night or Sunday, the killing long shifts of the steel business. More production, greater profits. $40,000,000 profit in Carnegie's greatest year. Carnegie and his "boys" whom he made millionaires, Frick his lifelong enemy, Schwab who sold the idea of the steel trust to Morgan, and Morgan who nearly went broke on it and was saved by a personal appeal to Frick.

Some Pointers on Hell

Milton could have picked up some valuable pointers for his picture of Hell if he could have seen Pittsburgh. Perhaps nowhere else in America has business enterprise and business necessity, the crazy, the crazy, the crazy, the crazy, the production, the endless circle of competition, production, profit, expansion, competition, over-production, greater profit, greater expansion, greater competition—the whole works as it existed in America from Grant's administration to Coolidge's—so stamped itself on a piece of country-side and moulded it in its image as in the Pittsburgh valley. The American industrialist made Pittsburgh in his image, and he saw that it was good.

And incidentally, Pittsburgh is one of the reasons why we are in the condition we are in today. Not merely Pittsburgh, of course. All the rest of Pennsylvania, Birmingham, Alabama, Akron and Detroit, Lowell and Lawrence, Fall River and New Bedford, Manchester and Birmingham, England. The black country and the pottery district. Essen and the Rhineland, Germany, Lille and Northern France, Belgium. And now the great central cities that are rising on the Russian steppe.

A civilization that has pretty nearly destroyed itself with the craze for production, the greed for profit, vaunting ambition that overleaps itself and falls on its other side. Shakespeare knew! No concern for decent distribution, for Christian charity. No concern for living as a fine art. Carnegie yelling for more and more production, cutting his competitors' throats, and leaving $50 millions for popular education and international peace—both of which his business activities had made all but impossible.

New England in the light of an early November morning looks good. The Connecticut cities on the Sound are pretty dreadful, of course. And Providence, and Worcester is no garden city. Our textile cities are pretty horrible. And the parts of Boston the railroad run through. But believe me, they are Gardens of Eden compared with the rape and destruction man has wrought in the valleys about Pittsburgh.

The period from the Civil War to the Great War was a period of great works that had to be done. It took half a century to build today's America. And it took another half century to undo the work of that blind ruthless, ugly age of expansion. We Americans certainly owe America an apology for what we have done to her. Another century, maybe, and we shall have evolved a civilization with some kind of decent balance between production and consumption. The sign of that accomplishment will be the abolition of places like Pittsburgh from the American scene.

BOSTON FISHERMEN TELL HOW THEY CHEATED DEATH IN DORY

24-HOUR FIGHT FOR LIFE IN OPEN BOAT

Rowed for Hours in Killing Cold and Made Shore Just as Craft Smashed on Rocks

Full of recollections of their first serious Thanksgiving, but with their hands full of blisters, Melbourne Coffin, 35, of 349 Saratoga st., East Boston, and Frank J. White, 38, of 478 Cambridge st., East Cambridge, arrived back in Boston today, men walking out of the realm of the dead.

Yesterday the fishing boat Gosoon, owned by Oliver Gosoon, came up Boston harbor with five men at helm, in belief that Coffin and White had been lost in the Grand Banks, but the flag was run up in the boat when it was learned that the men had saved themselves.

Today Coffin and White arrived home on the steamer Yarmouth, from Nova Scotia, telling a tale of a harrowing battle against a sea which ended Thanksgiving night on Seal Island off Nova Scotia, when the dory they had rowed and rowed for more than 24 hours crashed on the rocks.

REAL THANKSGIVING

It was Thanksgiving night, they were shaking with cold, they were drenched and their outboard motor had broken. No house was in sight and the blinding fog was against the dull lighting of the sea but on the dipping rocks they saw Gosoon.

Then they pulled along the island water until they came to the nearest house, three miles away from where word of their safety was telephoned the mainland. "We put off from the Gosoon last Wednesday and took a flat position about a mile from the wharves," said White when the two men reached Boston.

"About three hours later the fog closed down and we could hardly see the bow or stern of the dory from where we sat. We had a faint idea of where Gosoon was and started to sail for it when darkness caught us."

RAILED IN HOURS.

"I said to Mel, 'We'd better shove off for land and screw.' I figured it was about 10 hours from where we were. We sailed with the sail up and were O. K. for about 16 hours when the wind shifted to dead ahead."

"That had us hooked on the hull, because if we tried to tack that little dory in those big waves she would have snapped. So we dropped the sail and unshipped the oars."

"Then it was terrible—battering us over one big sea and then swallowed between two, hauling up again and then dropping. Pretty soon our hands began to go bad, but we couldn't give up, because if we did we were all washed up. The sea broke over the dory, and in spite of our rowing we were frozen and our teeth chattering."

CHEATED DEATH

"Then we seemed to get our second wind or something, and found ourselves rowing mechanically. All day Thanksgiving we rowed, almost starved from our hard work and with very little water."

"It was just dark again when we came in in Seal Island and the dory grounded on a rock. We jumped out in water up to our necks and crawled ashore over the rocks."

"A few seconds later the dory was lifted up and smashed into a thousand pieces by a huge roller. Then, after we said our Thanksgiving prayers right there on the rocks, we started to look for a house and found one three miles away."

As a part of its efforts to further popularize New England winter sports, the Boston and Maine Railroad today announced that just as soon as snow flies in sufficient amount "The Snow Train" will be resumed. These one-day Sunday sports excursions to central and northern New England communities last year carried as many as 1144 skis, snowshoes and toboggans en masse out of the North Station in one day.

In resumption of "The Snow Train," the Boston and Maine will again have the cooperation of the Ski Committees of the Appalachian Mountain Club. This cooperation last year resulted in "The Snow Train" having a 100 per cent record in finding winter sports conditions perfect at the centers selected.

Baltimore will be the first "Snow Train" probably will be operated December 27 or January 3. Commencing January 3, the announcement states, "The Snow Train" will be started every Sunday when snow sports conditions are good in New England hills.

Officer Casey Retires
Patrolman Michael Casey, 52, of the Fields Corner station, retires today.

BACK FROM DEATH'S MAW $6,000,000 IN NEW HIGHWAYS ARE PLANNED

They say if Larriung Lucki Lawless should hang on to the any-chin-cho of Larriung Lucki Lawless in the Boston dog-eat-dog night, and the world's wilderness champion should lay down and listen to the birdies chirping for 10 or more seconds, the world will not change hands. That may be so, for the strapping air-baiting the wilderness hunt and are not fighting over the championship. Nevertheless, a knockout of Broadbill would split the whole sport world as well as the champion, and certainly would pave the way for an official championship match in which the Syracuse slugger would be given a clear chance at the title. If there is any knockout in the Garden tonight, B. L. Lucki, not Larriung Lucki, is likely to be on the receiving end. Broadbill, with his big board chin, his neck of a young bull and his superb, natural stamina and vitally shreds labelled hawkeyes like a duck sheds water. Lawless, on the other hand, has hustled the carpet for 10 seconds or more on several occasions. Lawless sports several recently belted training wounds. Broadbill is likely to be a knockout for the champion, and the referee, who is very much clear, the referee at the prohibition act will interfere.

Lawless may cuff and slap his way to victory over Brouillard, but like Harry Greb and over Tommy Tunney, Tom Gibber and other heavyweights, he is a Greb and just like Harry Greb. Another lucky guess bounding in tossing leather from every angle. An opponent never knows just what Bucky is going to do next. Bucky's ears in like a baby bushido. Storm signals are out and Brouillard better reef all sail and prepare for a hurricane. Win or lose Lawless gives the crowd a run for its money, and anything in the same ring with him has to fight or jump over the ropes. Regardless of how win trophy's shindy should be a thriller and a crowd pleaser.

John Mall, who went to New York for his Thanksgiving dinner and saw the Carnera-Campolo and attendant hosts in Madison Square Garden, says if the matchmakers are looking for a "strong shiny" they should pair up the heavy hitting Walter Cobb and Ernie Schaaf. John says if Ernie and Walter ever clamed into a ring, something would happen. "I don't know if they are just boys or if they are all right," says John. Cobb is a giant 235-pounder who broke Carnera's ribs in a training bout in Miami and made things easier for our Shamus Maloney. Walter broke into the game he was known as Walker Rich of Kansas City. Now he is known as Walter Cobb of Baltimore and is a stage actor. "I don't know if they are all right," says John. That is why Cobb and Carnera will not meet. There are many who think Cobb would knock the giant Italian for a loop.

We asked Malloy what he thought of Steve Hama, the Penn State collegian, who the veteran, Charlie Harvey, has been nursing along. "He's a tough, young bumbste with a punch in both hands," answered Malloy, "and he's weaving in slung" — meaning high, wide and handsome. "I never have a fight stand up under a worse hammering than Hama gave Norman Burke. The Snal gong saved Hama from a knockout, but save for that last few seconds Hama outfought and outbattered the California Dutchman all the way. If Harvey nurses the young collegian along a few months more he may yet develop into a great fighter."

SPECTATOR Says:

All things taken into account, the market outlook today may be considered just a whit better than the manner in which stocks moved through yesterday's severe test. What if such pivotal leaders as U. S. Steel, American Can and Washington Electric broke in new low levels for the decline? In fact, such a performance on the part of these key issues has been more or less the rule in recent weeks.

A SANTA CLAUS VISIT AND CHERY FACTS

By B. C. FORBES
I HAVE JUST VISITED, with my three-year-old, Santa Claus in a very large department store. It was crowded. "There isn't much sign of depression here," remarked my wife—with, I suspected, a slight insinuation that I have not been drawing for her a sufficiently cheerful picture of conditions.

Later, when we got into a taxi, the streets were so jammed with automobiles that progress was extremely slow. "Are all these people riding to the poorhouse?" she asked, cynically I rather think.

I had been dropping her lately that Santa Claus might not trust us to be so generous as in other years. This thing has not helped me a bit. "It was only the other evening that some out-of-town friends, who had been 'dined' New York in lively fashion, told us of having visited apothecaries after apothecaries and having found each one crowded, with bartenders working perspiring."

What can one make of it all? There you are again. Buick Tures Customers. Then, too, I lunched with a Buick executive, and here are some of his statements:

Over two million people visited our showrooms when we announced our new models. This is exactly twice the volume we were attracted before. Here we are in a so-called depression, yet, by the exercising of faith and courage and tremendously aggressive advertising, we interested thinking America in an automobile product to twice the number of any other car. The better said, the people are actually buying. We believe that, by continuing very aggressive sales promotion and advertising, Buick will experience a very satisfactory 1932."

There you are again. Plenty of Cash for Sports. Some of my young friends tell me of their adventures in trying to attend popular football matches. When they motor, they say, the roads being clogging up with cars miles away. They picture the crowds of spectators as at least equaling anything they have ever before seen. Prices, apparently, have not come down, either.

There you are again. U. S. Bonds Higher in N. Y. Dealings. Perhaps the trouble with a lot of people is that they regard the "dizzy peak" of 1929 prosperity as the situation this country—and they should normally expect. Naturally, such childish reasoning breeds disappointment, bitterness, even despair.

That prosperity peak was on more normal than any the conditions we have lately experienced. This year represents one extreme just as 1929 represented the other extreme.

What we can hope for and look for and work for is a return to conditions midway between the two extremes. Because of our unconscious excesses during the boom, the struggle back to normal necessarily had to be painful. It still is painful. That inflation has been drastically eradicated in almost every direction and that deflation has already been carried over-in many directions cannot be questioned. We must not expect to leap into a new era of inflation at one swift bound. It is, however, reasonable to conclude that nothing worse than has already happened can happen all over again.

We have reached levels so low that it is logical to look for tangible betterment as soon as our mental attitude becomes better. If you have a job, stop whimpering. Work! Copyright, 1931, by B. C. Forbes Candidates for office in several States are experimenting. Instead of giving away cigars, they are distributing phonograph records, fly swatters and thimbles. Swift idea—phonies. Vote 23 times for the same guy and get a washing machine.

And just about the time politicians abandon giving away campaign cigars, health authorities will announce that the nation does not appreciate the value of cabbage.
